I VI D - General

1. Who were PAEFFGEN's predecessors as Gruppenleiter of VI D?
2. Names and functions of important officers of VI D?
3. Where are VI D files and what orders were issued for their destruction or concealment?
4. What were VI D's relations with the Abwehr?
5. Gruppe VI D has been reported as having had four, seven, nine, and twelve referate. Its sphere of activity since 1941 has been reported to include the Balkans, Scandinavia, the American Continents and the U.K. This information is probably correct. PAEFFGEN should be able to fill in the lacunae in our picture of VI D by giving the following information with, wherever possible, officers and inclusive dates.
 - (a) What territories, other than the English speaking countries and Scandinavia, has VI D covered?
 - (b) What changes in geographical designation (and corresponding territory) have been made in the referate of VI D in the past five years?
 - (c) Names, cover names, and missions of agents directed by PAEFFGEN. How successful were they in carrying out their assignments?

II Post-War

1. What plans were made by Amt VI for intelligence work against the U.K. in the event of a German defeat? Who was concerned with (a) drawing up and (b) executing such plans?
2. What use was to be made of Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, and Sweden in Amt VI post-war plans.
3. What plans were made by Amt VI for intelligence work in the U.K. in the event of a German victory.

III Miscellaneous

1. Did any officers of VI D report direct to SCHEELE or G?
2. What use was made by VI D of Japanese diplomats or intelligence officers and Japanese lines of communications (a) before and (b) after Japan's entry into the war?
3. Hans Wilhelm THOST of Amt VI D, pre-war representative of Volkischer Beobachter in London, states that early in 1943 he attended a conference with SCHUEDEDEKOPF, PAEFFGEN, and Oberpostrat VETTERLIN. Subject of this conference was the interception of radio-telephonic communications between London and Washington. THOST was responsible for exploiting these intercepts. PAEFFGEN's remarks on this subject would be of considerable interest.
4. Early in January 1945 PAEFFGEN ordered THOST to report at the Anhalter Bahnhof in Berlin for orders to proceed to Linz where a group of British and American officers were
